

Yonkers Raided For Liquor and 38 Are Caught

Izzy Einstein's Traveling Squad Lands at Once on 34 Suspects, Seizing Truckload of Liquor

Whisky Valued at $100,000 Taken in Brooklyn; Alcohol Found in Manhattan

Prohibition enforcement agents, under the direction of "Izzy" Einstein, swooped down on Yonkers yesterday, just after noon, and when they had completed their round-up thirty-eight prisoners had been taken and a truckload of contraband confiscated. There were more than 100 agents in the raiding squad, all recruited from the Manhattan and Brooklyn offices of the government, and they were armed with warrants to search thirty-four establishments.

Promptly at 12:30 the "zero hour" set by Einstein and R. Hugh Merritt, chief supervising agent for Manhattan, who aided in the plan of the campaign, all the suspected places were entered simultaneously.

"There was no resistance," Einstein said after the raid. "We had search warrants for thirty-four places and took everything we found. Nobody tried to get away. They were all taken by surprise."

Drinks, Then Arrest

The prohibition agents, it was said, made no raids without first purchasing a drink of liquor, and the authorities in Yonkers in a majority of the arrests. Fourteen of the prisoners were taken to the Yonkers police headquarters, twelve were brought to New York and the others were taken to other stations. The orders were that the prisoners were all to be taken to the Yonkers headquarters, but there was a misunderstanding.

Most of the places upon which Einstein's men descended were saloons, no roadhouses, it was said, having been entered. Saloons which specialize in out-of-town trade were not bothered, which led to a report that local complaints probably were responsible for the big raid.

Three of the more prominent saloon proprietors arrested were Philip Humen, of 24 Palisade Avenue, and his bartender, James Elkey, proprietor of a hotel at Wells and Warburton avenues, one block from the police station, and Michael Feeney, of 171 Riverdale Avenue. The prisoners were taken to Yonkers headquarters and they will be arraigned on Monday before United States Commissioner Hitchcock.

Other seizures made yesterday by members of Director Yellowley's staff were in Brooklyn and Manhattan. The former was the confiscation of 990 cases of whisky, valued at nearly $100,000, consigned to E. J. Hart, of 2316 Eighth Street. The seizure was made at the railroad terminal in Wallabout Basin.

$12,000 in Alcohol Seized

The Manhattan seizure was of twenty-four barrels of alcohol, valued at $12,000, from a warehouse at 827 Hudson Street.

Applications for permits to manufacture and sell malt liquors for medicinal purposes were received yesterday by Director Yellowley, with the arrival from Washington of the amended prohibition act, embodying the regulation governing such sales.

The first application was from Piel

Brothers, a well known brewing concern. That plant will be inspected closely to see that its operation conforms with the regulations, as will those of other applicants, and then the applications will be forwarded to Washington for final approval or disapproval.

Straight Post Charges Attempt at Gag Rule

Replies to Recommendation of County Legion Board That It Be Suspended

The executive committee of Willard Straight Post of the American Legion issued a statement yesterday in reply to the action taken by the county committee of the Legion Wednesday night in recommending the suspension of the Legion to silence the minority, outspoken opposition to giving preference to veterans in state civil service, in which it was said:

"This action of the county committee changes the situation from one of a mere difference of opinion about this amendment. It becomes now a struggle for freedom of speech as against gag rule. If it is possible for a majority of the Legion to silence the minority, then the entire democratic foundation upon which the Legion has been built is overturned."

"We believe that in taking an aggressive public stand against this amendment we are representing a widespread sentiment among ex-service men. The statement of Willard Straight Post expressed the unanimous sentiment of its members."

Chum Accuses Youth of Killing Lawrence Girl

Frank Jancarek, Employee in Greenhouse Near Scene of Madison, N. J., Murder, Held After Grilling

Prisoner Denies Guilt

Kinfolk Say Charge Was Made by Companion in Revenge for Loss of Job

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Oct. 27.—Frank Jancarek, twenty years old, of Florham Park, is being held in the Morris County Jail here on suspicion of having assaulted and killed eleven-year-old Janette Lawrence in Madison on October 6 last.

Jancarek was arrested yesterday afternoon in Florham Park, near Madison, by Detectives Brennan and Hedley, of Morris County, and Detectives Farrell, Thunell, Sweney and Bell, of Newark. The arrest was kept secret, while the police grilled Jancarek in the hope of getting a confession. After hours of continuous questioning the prisoner nevertheless maintained that he was innocent.

Jancarek was taken as a result of a confession he is said to have made to his friend, Frank McGorory. According to the statements McGorory is said to have made to the police he was with Jancarek on the day of the murder.

"I left him about noon," McGorory is alleged to have said, "and when I met him again at night I remarked that his shirt, shoes and trousers were spotted with blood. He then told me how he had assaulted and finally murdered the girl because he thought she identified him."

Accusation Called Revenge

Jancarek was employed in a greenhouse owned by his brother-in-law, A. C. Ruzicka, in Florham Park. His brother, Joseph, and his mother, Mrs. Francis Jancarek, were there this afternoon. Joseph said that McGorory had been employed at the greenhouse up to last Friday, when he was dismissed. Joseph believes that the story implicating his brother in the murder was to get revenge for his discharge.

All the members of the family said that Frank had dinner with them at 6:10 Thursday evening, October 6. The Lawrence girl is believed to have been murdered between 5 and 7 o'clock. Her hands had been tied behind her back with twine such as gardeners use. She had been stabbed twenty-five times and a handkerchief was knotted about her neck.

Francis Kluxen 8d, fourteen years old, was arrested on the night following the discovery of the body in a scrubby patch of woods belonging to his father and facing the Lawrence home at 142 Ridgedale Avenue. He was released in $5,000 bail for the action of the grand jury.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 27.—Dr. V. A. Hadley, convicted of the murder of his wife, was sentenced to-day by Judge

When asked by the clerk the usual perfunctory question, whether he had anything to say, Dr. Hadley replied in a low, slightly husky voice: "I have nothing further to say than that all of the facts in this case will never be known."

The IDEMODE

AT THE Top

A merchant who has reached the top owes it to perseverance, patience, and integrity, vision, knowledge and experience. His stock results from a winnowing of the world's field of merchandise.

He is not mistaken in his valuation of sensations—he offers more than merchandise. His goods give double value—the workmanship and wear that is in them and, in addition, the accuracy with which they conform to current taste. New York merchants find in Ide Collars a certain quality that New Yorkers want.

It is the certain quality of Ide style.

The Ide Linocord Buttonhole is a style anchor, holding the points of the collar as close, or as far apart, as the style lines demand. It insures the style through countless trips to the laundry.

It is indeed a worthy mate to the durable cloth out of which Ide Collars are fashioned.
